

Stanford University

LENS OF VC

June 3, 2015 - MS&E 476

Entrepreneurship through the Lens of Venture Capital: Venture Capital from Past to Present

On June 3rd, Chris was invited to serve as a guest instructor for Stanford's Entrepreneurship Through the Lens of Venture Capital class, a prestigious application-selected group of students from across all departments of Stanford University; PhD's, JD's, MBA's, and undergraduates. In this session, Chris discussed current LP-GP dynamics, what he looks for when funding a firm, current trends in fund terms, and how the overall landscape has changed since he started his institutional investing career 15 years ago. This is his second year as a speaker for the program.

